Adapt and Overcome

It's been an exceptional year for the VA Salt Lake City VA Health Care System.

COVID-19 brought about challenges we never could've imagined. But in keeping with the Veteran adage of "adapt and overcome," we've met those challenges head-on.

During the onset of the pandemic, we rapidly adjusted our procedures to ensure the safety of all Veterans and staff. And as the country was locking down, we used technology to shift operations to virtual care.

But we didn't stop there. We embraced technology and used it to take us further. In doing so, we created VA's first online telehealth training center and revamped our network to support a larger virtual workforce.

Staff, too, adapted and mobilized to provide COVID-19 testing and care. Some deployed across the nation, enduring long, uncomfortable hours to care for our Veterans. In support of frontline healthcare workers, we organized the first VA daycare of its kind.

And instead of slowing down, we expanded our infrastructure, opening not one — but three community clinics: South Jordan in September 2020, Ogden in October 2020, and Orem in November 2020. These facilities doubled our capacity to provide vital care to Veterans in the community.

We're now better positioned to serve our Veterans than ever before. Moving forward, we'll continue to support Secretary McDonough in his goal of providing all our Veterans timely, world-class health care.

We'll achieve this by improving the Veteran experience. This includes modernizing our medical records, increasing access, and improving transparency as a high reliability organization.

And it means VA will remain inclusive, welcoming all Veterans, including women, Veterans of color, and LGBTQ Veterans.

Finally, we'll build upon our existing efforts to reach more Veterans. And we'll work to keep the ones we have; doubling down on our campaigns to end Veteran homelessness and suicide.

Paramount to our mission is that we continue to exemplify the core VA I-CARE values: Integrity, Commitment, Advocacy, Respect, and Excellence — values that elevate us as the provider of choice.

The pandemic has affected all facets of our Healthcare System, but through innovation and teamwork, we'll continue to develop proactive solutions to overcome any challenges. The upcoming year will place us in a dynamic and ever-changing landscape. We don't know when or if the pandemic will end, but the goal remains the same: a new — and better — normal.

Surge plan to ensure patient safety

While the world shut down from the global pandemic, VA Salt Lake City HCS ramped up its COVID-19 infrastructure and screening to ensure the safe care of Veterans. Hospital COVID-19 procedures went into effect almost immediately, minimizing the risk to non-COVID/non-emergent Veterans needing care. Routine, in-person appointments were quickly shifted to virtual care, while safety remained at the forefront of all decisions impacting Veterans and employees. Within days of the World Health Organization declaring a pandemic, VASLC became the first hospital in the city to implement a 100 percent COVID-19 screening protocol. We quickly established a COVID-19 testing drive-thru and a childcare facility for employees affected by school closures. Finally, we deployed 13 employees across the country as part of the Disaster Emergency Medical Personnel System in support of the COVID-19 surge.

VA Video Connect (VVC)

Virtual Health Care is the Future: VVC University now enrolling:

As COVID-19 disrupted the nation's hospitals, providers at VA Salt Lake City Health Care System ramped up the use of VA Video Connect (VCC), a video conferencing program that allows medical professionals to remotely diagnose their patients and update medical charts.

The use of Video Connect also reduced Veteran travel times to in-person appointments – in some cases by hours. But it didn't just make life easier for Veterans; by staying at home, Veterans limit their exposure to the virus, keeping them safer.

To get providers up to speed, Pace and others at the medical center created VA Video Connect University, a two-day in-person training course  $\neg$ - and VA's first in the nation. The former Telehealth Primary Care Room now features 18 state-of-the-art private sound-resistant booths for video conferencing.
